The diagram illustrates the experimental setup. A participant is seated at a table, looking at a screen. On the screen, a 3D model of a face is displayed. The participant is instructed to judge the face as either 'attractive' or 'unattractive'. The judgment is recorded. The diagram also shows a '3D Model of Face' and a 'Judgment' box.

Students share their resolutions

Figure 1 displays a 5x5 grid of 25 grayscale images, illustrating the progression of a face from a blurry, low-resolution version to a sharp, high-resolution version. The images are arranged in a grid, with the top-left image being the most blurry and the bottom-right image being the sharpest. The faces are of different ethnicities and are shown in various poses and expressions.

A merry mishmash

THE NEW TV season is upon us, and the festive Christmas season is upon us. This, the season of giving, is also the season of the year-end TV season. It's a time to give the gift of television to the nation.

There are several ways to give the gift of television. You can give the gift of a new television set, or you can give the gift of a new television show. The latter is the more desirable gift, as it is a gift that keeps on giving.

One of the best ways to give the gift of television is to give the gift of a new television show. This is a gift that keeps on giving, as it is a gift that can be enjoyed by the whole family.
